Strike averted, jets fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of relieved travelers flew America's skies on Monday after a contract dispute was settled with the air traffic controllers. The controllers, who had grounded more than 100 flights, agreed to return to work after a tentative agreement was reached after all-night bargaining, was a victory for President Reagan, who declared last week the government would not offer any more money than the $40 million package it placed on the table weeks ago.

The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, originally sought $770 million, but, under pressure from the administration and Congress, it agreed to the tentative figure after redistributing the money in the package. The actual figure is $39.3 million.

Under the proposed 42-month contract, the 17,000 controllers, who now average $34,000 a year, would receive an immediate increase of about $4,000. PATCO had asked $10,000. The union also would gain something it long has sought — a voice in the Federal Aviation Administration's policy-making decisions on controllers.

PATCO announced at 5 a.m. EDT that tentative agreement had been reached and sent word to controllers around the country to report for their 7 a.m. shifts — the deadline set for a walkout.

Airport control towers reported normal operations with no major delays.

A strike could have grounded more than half the nation's 14,200 daily commercial flights, costing the airlines an estimated $80 million to $100 million a day — and perhaps thrice that for the economy in general.

It also would have seriously disrupted plans for millions of travelers at the beginning of the peak summer travel season, when nearly one million passengers take to the air each day. Businessmen and tourists, fearing a strike, jammed airports over the weekend, and Amtrak, bus companies and auto rental firms reported brisk business as travelers sought alternate transportation.

After the early morning announcement, several details remained to be worked out, and it wasn't until 9:30 a.m. that Transportation Secretary Ray Lewis told reporters, "We're very pleased to report that we have reached an agreement subject to ratification by the union membership. We feel it represents a just, reasonable and fair agreement."

Union President Robert Poli said, "I'm pleased with the settlement. We feel that with the present economic conditions, it is a good package for us."

"When God told Chapman to plead guilty, the decision was essentially made and I was removed from the decision-making process," said Marks.

Assistant District Attorney Allen Sullivan said that the defendant told him shortly before the plea change was announced that Chapman had decided to kill Lennon because he sought fame and he wanted to be noticed.

Chapman said he chose hollow-pointed bullets for his .38-caliber pistol because "he wanted to make sure he would kill John Lennon when he shot him," said Sullivan.

Discussion on the change of plea occurred before reporters and spectators were allowed to enter the tightly guarded courtroom.

A 19-year-old BYU student reportedly jumped or fell to his death from the seventh floor of a Deseret Towers office building at about 7 p.m. Monday, according to Wesley Snow, assistant captain of Security Police.

William Knudson, a junior in accounting, from San Bernardino, Calif., was pronounced dead on arrival at Utah Valley Hospital after apparently jumping or falling out of his window in W-Hall, said Sherwood.

"Everyone has his own theory as to what happened," Sherwood said, "but no one really knows."

He said Security interviewed between 20 and 25 persons Sunday and Monday in connection with the incident. "We can't find one person who actually saw him jump or fall," Sherwood said, "but we also couldn't find any evidence to show anything else."

He said investigating officers surmise that

Knudson leaped or fell from his room on the seventh floor of the hall.

"We have some witnesses," Sherwood said. "But when you get right down to it, no one actually saw him jump or fall."

Knudson's body was turned over to the State Medical Examiner for an autopsy to determine the cause of death, Sherwood said.

"There appears to be no sign of any struggle or foul play," he said.

Security Police is continuing the process of interviewing Knudson's friends and going through his personal effects in order to determine a motive.

ee awaits results of hearing

Law school dean, Rex E. Lee, is in Washington D.C., awaiting the outcome of the confirmation hearing to determine if he will become U.S. solicitor general. He is acting as a special assistant to the current solicitor general in the Iranian-asset case.

The Senate committee, which met over the weekend, has not yet arrived at a final decision on confirmation, Lee said.

The confirmation hearing met opposition from the National Organization for Women, the National Women's Political Caucus, Women's Legal Defense Fund and Mormons for ERA. The groups accused Lee of opposing equal rights for women.

Representatives from two of the organizations read a statement opposing Lee's nomination, pointing to what they called anti-ERA statements made in his book, "A Lawyer looks at the Equal Rights Amendment."

"I didn't respond to their accusations," Lee said. "I simply didn't want to escalate the issues."

"Anyone who will objectively read that book will know that it is not written by a bigot nor a sexist," he added.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., asked Lee how he expected equality to be achieved without the ERA.

"Through legislation and the 14th Amendment," Lee replied.

Lee was released Sunday as stake president of the BYU 7th Stake, and Neal E. Lambert, associate academic vice president of BYU, was called as the new stake president.

Lambert said Lee was released because "he's not here anymore. He's handling the affairs of the office of solicitor general, and his confirmation is evidently pretty well assured."

Y co-ed 'surprised' over Miss Utah win

By JEFF RUFFOLO
Utah Staff Writer

BYU co-ed Jonelle Smith said she was happy and surprised to have been named Miss Utah Saturday evening, but was embarrassed by the swim suit competition.

Miss Smith, a senior majoring in vocal performance from Prescott, Ariz., dazzled a standing-room-only crowd at Mountain View High School in Orem with a vocal aria of Verdi's "La Traviata."

Miss Smith said the hardest part of the finals was the swim suit competition.

"It was really hard to stand in front of so many people in a swim suit," she said. "As a contestant, you have to stand there on the stage, and everyone is looking at you. It was pretty scary."

The new Miss Utah will represent the state in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

"I would like to do an opera number for the Miss America Pageant," said Miss Smith, "but it may depend what rules the pageant has."

During preliminary competition Thursday and Friday evenings, Miss Smith won honors in the talent and evening gown competition which assured her a spot as one of the 10 finalists Saturday evening.

"I was so excited to be picked as one of the 10 finalists," Miss Smith said. "There were so many good-looking and talented people in the contest that I really didn't think I had a chance to win."

Miss Smith's win marked the second year in a row that a BYU co-ed has earned the Miss Utah title. She succeeds Jean Bullard, who was Miss Utah for 1980.

Cindy Quinn, Miss Provo, was selected as the first runner-up, and Allison Foote, Miss Spanish Fork was voted the third runner-up.

Nixon, former aides to pay for spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon and two of his closest aides said they will pay for illegally spying on a national security aide and his family, said the Supreme Court Monday.

The ruling, based on a 4-4 vote, left unclear whether Nixon and his aides will be held liable for similarly violating the constitutional rights of other Americans.

Justices said they will decide that next month.

The court's 4-4 vote in the domestic spying case left alive lawsuits against Nixon, former national security adviser Henry Kissinger, Haldeman and former Secretary of Defense national security adviser Henry Kissinger.

The case returns to a federal trial court where national security aide Morton Halperin will try to prove that he and his family were paid a substantial money award.

Halperin's home telephone was tapped for 21 months from May 1969 to February 1971, he said he was suspected of leaking foreign secrets to the press.

Halperin's wiretap never produced any proof of the suspicion, and the bugging lasted until Halperin's resignation from the security Council.

Halperin's lawyer, the only one remaining for Nixon, Mitchell and Halperin is how much they must pay Halperin.

The question of Kissinger's liability will be determined.

The Supreme Court rules, such even though Halperin automatically upholds whatever the lower court reached. The 4-4 tie was created when Justice William H. Rehnquist, a Justice Department lawyer at the time of the alleged violations, disqualified himself.

Such tie votes handed down without full opinions carry virtually no impact for future cases. Thus the expected important constitutional ruling — whether a president and his top aides can be forced to pay for violating citizens' rights — has gone unanswered except for Halperin's case.

Several other such lawsuits against Nixon and his aides are pending, and the court agreed to study one of them in still another attempt to resolve the larger issue.

The justices said they will study the case of government whistle-blower Ernest Fitzgerald, who claims Nixon should have to pay for his illegal firing from a civil service job.

Fitzgerald sued Nixon for $3.5 million because in 1969 he lost his job as a cost analyst for the Air Force after telling Congress that the C-5A transport plane would cost $2 billion more than originally estimated.

He was reinstated with back pay in 1973 but since has claimed the Air Force refuses to give him duties equal with those he had before his firing.

Rehnquist apparently will participate in the Fitzgerald case, in which a decision is not expected until sometime next year.

The court will likely have a new member by then. Justice Potter Stewart is to retire July 3. It was not known how he or any other member of the court voted in the Halperin case.

A Devotional assembly will be conducted June 30, he said.

No Forum assembly planned for today

There will be no Forum assembly on Tuesday, according to Robert Webb, BYU assistant academic vice president.

Webb said a Forum was not scheduled because it is the final Tuesday of the term.

A Devotional assembly will be conducted June 30, he said.

Refugees must learn new lifestyle

By LAURETTE CONKLING
Utah Staff Writer

She left her home in Vietnam on a 44-foot-long boat with 175 others. Her name is Minh Quan, and she is one of approximately 500,000 Indochinese refugees who have fled to America for freedom, said Kaylene Myers, director of ASBYU's Student Community Services Office volunteer program.

More than 1,600 Indochinese refugees reside in Utah County, said Myla Dutton, projects coordinator for Mountainland Community Action Agency.

Although most of the refugees who come to the United States are unfamiliar with the language and customs of the country, they must learn to make it their home and begin a new life here, Miss Dutton said.

Provo Community School is one organization that offers help to refugees of all ages who experience adjustment problems, said Sue Doughty, ASBYU Student Community Services vice president.

Three nights a week, courses are taught at Provo High School emphasizing survival skills and English for the refugees, said Elise Bauer, English as a second language director for Provo Community School.

"The first priority of ESL education for the refugees is to teach basic concepts of life necessary for their survival," it is not that the refugees are uneducated, it is just that they have had a completely different experience in life, she explained.

She said that the English classes concentrate on speaking skills rather than grammar. "Although the basic fundamentals are taught, we don't concentrate as much on what is a verb and what is a noun. We are teaching the refugees actual phrases to help them communicate in their various day-to-day situations," she said.

"They are here to stay, so this is not just a school to help them pass an English test," said Sandy Smith, an ESL instructor.

Atlanta hearing to start

ATLANTA (AP) — Prosecutors lined up witnesses Monday for the first hearing for a young black man who is charged with killing the latest victim in the baffling string of 26 slayings of young blacks.

Wayne Williams, 23, a free-lance photographer, was charged Sunday with strangling 27-year-old Nathaniel Cater, whose mangled body was found May 24 in the Chattahoochee River.

Williams was scheduled to appear Tuesday at a commitment hearing before Magistrate Albert Thompson. A decision will then be made whether to bind him over to a Fulton County grand jury.

Williams, who offered no resistance when arrested at his home Sunday, remained in an isolation cell at the Fulton County Jail. District Attorney Lewis Slaton said jailers were taking special care to protect him.

Meanwhile, authorities executing a search warrant late Monday afternoon spent four hours in the home where Williams lived with his parents and removed several bags of material, said one of the police officers directing traffic in front of the home.

Williams had been under intense surveillance since June 3, when he was questioned in connection with the slayings.

He was released when authorities said they had insufficient evidence to make an arrest.

Sources close to the investigation told The Associated Press that fear Williams would elude authorities was a prime element in the timing of the arrest.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown, who oversees the special police task force investigating the slayings, said Monday the unit "has been doing everything that is humanly possible" to investigate the 27 other slayings.

He refused to comment on whether Williams was a suspect in any of those slayings, but said the investigation have said fibers taken from Williams' car and home in a search June 3 are similar to those found on several victims.

A highly placed investigator, who requested anonymity, said the decision to arrest Williams on Sunday afternoon was based in part on a drive he took Saturday night.

Williams left his home Saturday night and drove to the homes of Brown and Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson, said the investigator. This was the second time in two weeks Williams had led officers to Brown's home.

Williams, described as highly intelligent by friends and associates, was stopped in the early morning hours May 22 by authorities staking out a bridge over the Chattahoochee River.

Two sports seek new home

By CHRISTIAN SONNE
Universe Staff Writer

A recommendation has been made to allow two BYU sports programs, soccer and rugby, to use the infield of the proposed new track for competition, according to Rollie Bestor, director of extramural sports.

He said the cost of the new track would be better justified if programs other than the track program were allowed to use the proposed facility. "The cost of the track would be spread out if more programs are involved," said Bestor.

He also said the field inside the track would be a better playing surface than at Haws Field, the area where competition for the two sports is currently conducted.

The new track will be built at the Helaman Halls field, which is a north of Helaman Halls and south of Cougar Stadium on University Avenue, said Clarence Robison, BYU head track coach.

W. Rolf Kerr, BYU executive vice president, said plans concerning the track are still in the conceptual stage, and he has not heard of the proposal concerning the infield of the track.

"We will try to get as much use as we can from the new facility and try to take advantage of the space available," he said.

"If a small stadium is being developed there, we would be interested in working into that situation. But, I'm not particularly anxious," said BYU rugby coach John Seggar.

He said a rugby field would fit inside a 440-yard track, but it "would squeeze the field out."

A rugby field has to be at least 65 yards wide and 100 meters long, according to Seggar.

Robison said dual use of the infield is possible, but not practical because "we need permanent space for field events, particularly the throw events."

If the infield designed for a soccer rugby field, the events (for track) have to be outside track, said Robison.

Paul Richards, director of BYU Public Communications, said decision about recommendation or be made at any time because "officials want to get moving on project."

Rate hike proposed to cover postal loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing losses of up to $500 million at current mail rates, the Postal Service Monday made its third request for permission to charge 20 cents for mailing a first-class letter.

New financial figures presented at a special meeting of the mail agency's governing board showed the higher-than-expected deficit, which it blamed on the Postal Rate Commission's two refusals to allow a 20-cent rate.

Board member William J. Sullivan, looking at the mail agency's financial results since it increased the rate from 15 to 16 cents on March 22, commented, "We're doing worse than when we had a 15-cent stamp."

One alternative the board had was to try to bypass the commission and put the 20-cent rate into effect on its own, which would have required a unanimous vote of the nine-member board.

The board issued a terse statement saying it had ordered a cost reduction of $200 million in building during the next fiscal year, or more than half of what it planned to spend. This cut is part of an "overall cost reduction program," the statement by board Chairman Robert L. Hardesty said.

Hardesty also said the board is asking the rate commission to reconsider its position.

"Again and again, we have examined the figures, and again and again those figures show that we were in serious financial trouble almost as soon as the new rates went into effect," Hardesty said.

"If the Postal Rate Commission is going to close its eyes to the service's financial plight, we certainly are not," he said.

The commission is a separate agency that holds hearings and decides on Postal Service requests for higher postal charges. The small agency and the large one it regulates have increasingly been at odds during recent years.

Bani-Sadr dismissed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini dismissed Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr from office Monday and then appealed to the fugitive ex-chief of state to return to the Islamic revolutionary fold as a "writer and thinker," Tehran radio reported.

The conciliatory move by the 81-year-old supreme leader appeared aimed at extracting the ousted president from an underground alliance with leftist and opposition activists at home and at stopping him from linking up with exiled monarchy supporters abroad.

A sizable portion of Khomeini's one-hour pre-recorded broadcast speech was addressed directly to the 47-year-old Bani-Sadr, who has been reported moving from one hideout to another in Tehran since the final move to impeach him was mounted in Parliament a week ago.

"I did not want what happened today to happen," Khomeini said of his dismissal of Bani-Sadr following an overwhelming vote by Parliament on Sunday, which proclaimed Bani-Sadr "incompetent to stay in office."

The Tehran prosecutor's office said 25 people have been executed since Saturday's street clashes in the capital which pitted Bani-Sadr's supporters against Islamic fundamentalists.

The Ayatollah appeared to offer to stop legal proceedings against Bani-Sadr when he said, "There is always room for repentance. Repent and take a step toward God and God will accept your return. Your honor will return to you and so will your dignity."

Conflict hid real motive, says Begin

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Monday his sharp statements on the Lebanese missile crisis drew attention away from his government's primary concern — the plan to bomb Iraq's nuclear reactor.

The state radio report did not make clear whether the prime minister claimed to have made the statements before the raid with the purpose of deceiving Iraq.

The radio said Begin told legislators about the diversion during a closed-door meeting of Parliament's Foreign Affairs and Security Committee in a survey of two foreign policy issues. The dispute over Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon and the widespread international condemnation of Israel's June 7 air raid on Iraq's nuclear facilities.

ASBYU to organize student tenant group

A Student Tenant Association to deal with landlord-tenant issues is being organized by ASBYU Vice President Don Bigger and the Ombudsman's Office, Bigger said.

"We will be working with the University of Utah ombudsman in a concentrated effort to lobby for and work with student concerns in landlord-tenant issues," said Bigger.

The association will be a separate entity from ASBYU and the Ombudsman, he said. The purpose of the association will be to concentrate solely on landlord-tenant issues.

The three primary areas of emphasis to be undertaken by the association, Bigger said, are:

— Informing student tenants about landlord-tenant rights, responsibilities and avenues of recourse.

— Working with local community leaders on landlord-tenant issues.

— Introducing legislation before the state legislature to effect changes when appropriate.

Museum workers take field trip to explore Southern Utah fields

Members of the museum went on a three-day field trip to Zion National Park, Coral Pink Sand Dunes, near Kanab, and Pine Valley, north of St. George.

According to Dr. Richard Baumann, the museum's director, the purpose of the trip was to show appreciation to the volunteers for the time spent helping museum visitors and to give first-hand experience on how scientists work in the field.

Mary Harward, a volunteer worker who went on the field trip, said, "The trip was fantastic, and the association with the professors from the museum was the best part of all."

Mrs. Harward said the scenery was delightful. The group spent Thursday night in the desert at Coral Pink Sand Dunes and Friday night in the mountains at Pine Valley.

"I learned more from that trip than I could have learned in a semester of school," she said.

According to Don Searle, a member of the party, everyone shared in the knowledge the scientists had to offer.

For example, members of the party watched Elbert Simmons, the museum's education adviser, as he examined kangaroo rats, deer mice and chipmunks he caught with a trap the night before, Searle said.

Dr. Doug Cox, assistant director to the museum, gave evening lectures on how to handle snake bites and led the party on a climb up a bluff near Kanab where they found a three-toed dinosaur footprint.

A lizard is held in an examiner's hand while being classified. Monte L. Bean Museum volunteers recently traveled to Southern Utah to gain first-hand experience on how scientists work in the field.

Same dress code; redefinition made

Many students think BYU has a new dress code. But the standard is the same; it has just been redefined, said R. Michael Whitaker, chairman of the Office of University Standards.

"There is not really a new standard, just a different interpretation," said Whitaker.

"Jeans are now looked upon as slacks, and are not in violation of standards," he said. However, pants which are grubby are not allowed. He also said men's hair can now brush the top of the ear, instead of being completely off the ear.

Whitaker said a precise definition of the standards was needed so there would not be any questions about the dress code.

"Basically, the students have accepted the code well," Whitaker said. "Our students look good."

"There are certain official checkpoints around campus that are used to watch students. If someone is not dressed within standards, a 'silent referral' is made," he said.

A silent referral means that without confronting a student, his name is taken and then reported to standards, Whitaker said. The student is asked to talk with a counselor, and the problem is discussed.

"We have been very pleased with the attitude of students who have been called in," said Whitaker. "Most of the students know why they have been called in. They have already taken care of their problems, whatever each one's case may be."

There have still been a few problems with things being worn by males and females and shorts being worn outside of athletic areas, he said.

However, the big test of new standards will come in the fall, said Whitaker.

"We don't want to be punitive, but we do want the students to know we mean business," he said.

New class studies millennium

A course to be offered summer term for the first time at BYU will help students learn the "history of the future,"

Dr. Paul E. Pixton, an associate professor of history,

Listed as History 380R, "The History of Millenarianism," the course will be taught by Pixton on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 to 10 a.m.

Scheduled to begin June 30, the course will be worth three credit hours and can be repeated for additional credit, said Pixton.

The class will focus on the history of Christian belief in the millennium and will explore various interpretations of several Christian denominations, Pixton said.

"LDS Church members are not unique in their belief in a Second Coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of a 1,000-year reign of peace upon the earth," Pixton said.

"The course will take the topic of the millennium and place it within a broad historical framework," he said.

"It also will consider the individuals and forces which revived the belief in a literal millennium in recent times," he added.

Vocational students win national awards

Two BYU students won awards in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America competition conducted last week in Atlanta.

Bill Moore, a graduate student majoring in vocational education, won a gold medal for first place in the sheet metal competition by building a working heating-duct system.

Kim Een, a junior from Holiday, Utah, majoring in industrial education, won a certificate of honor in the automotive division.

Brazil trip nets soccer recruits

By STEVE TRUE
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU soccer team isn't known as "The Boys From Brazil" just yet, but all that may change as a result of BYU soccer coach Savji "Jim" Dusara's visit to the South American country last month.

Dusara not only learned a lot from the Brazilians about training and commitment to the game, he also recruited three top Brazilian amateurs while he was there. Forwards Lacerda, Gome Jorge Luiz, a member of Brazil's junior national team, Musa Jose Aristabulo and midfielder Jose Henrique Dalanhese all have made commitments to play for BYU and are either already here or on the way.

Combine those players with the three Brazilians Dusara already has playing for him — forward Renato Domaretsky and midfielders Edvaldo Gomes and Fernando Muniz — and the team could be calling both Sao Paulo and Provo home.

Dusara spent his time in Brazil observing how the Brazilians trained and played. A number of things impressed him — things he'll incorporate in the BYU program.

"I plan to blend the Brazilian style of ball control and short passes with the American running game," Dusara said.

"I was amused with the way 6-year-old kids juggled the ball like it was their friend. I was impressed with the way the Brazilian kids played soccer everywhere — on the beach, tennis and basketball courts, and even in the streets. It's a way of life for Brazilian kids," he says.

Dusara also discovered how Brazilians learn to kick the ball the right way — they practice barefoot. Dusara intends to have his camps and teams practice that very same way.

"Kicking barefoot gives players a better feel for the ball. It increases the sensitivity of the foot and makes the foot almost like an extension of the body. Most soccer players here play in shoes. When they kick with the wrong part of the foot, it doesn't hurt."

"When a player kicks barefoot with his front toe and not with his instep, it's going to hurt. He's going to quit doing it," Dusara said.

BYU soccer is still a long way from enjoying the popularity soccer has in Brazil, Dusara said. There, soccer is played in 230,000-seat stadiums. It's the most popular sport in America. It's going to take time and effort to get fans used to more than football, basketball and baseball, he said.

Part of it is because of the academic environment at BYU which hurts those students who are just learning English, Dusara said. Another thing that doesn't help is that the soccer team still doesn't have its first full scholarship. Finally, even though Dusara is a full-time coach, he's just a part-time faculty member.

Still, if Dusara has his way, BYU will turn into a national power.

"By 1984, I figure to be in the NCAA championship game," Dusara said. "With the quality of players we're getting to come here, we really aren't that far away."

BYU's soccer team will benefit from numerous new recruits including three Brazilians. They should make battles, like this one last year against Utah, a little easier.

Y gets ski coach

It may be the heat of June, but BYU has a new coach who's thinking about snow and skiing.

Dean Wheadon, the former head of ski instruction at Snowbird, is the Cougars' new ski coach.

Wheadon has been the coach for only a month, but in that time he's added four volunteer assistants, established a training program that runs from November to January and set up a new PE class for competitive skiers.

Wheadon's new assistants are Jerry Warren, Gene Palmer, Steve Bounos and conditioning specialist Dr. Wayne Mineer.

The BYU ski team has some good returnees, including Jim Christensen, Dale Rowley, Don Bills and freshman Troy McCreary, Wheadon said.

Wheadon hopes to put the extramural team on a high enough level to be invited to the NCAA championships.

Provo woman swindled; $9,000 in life savings lost

By RUSSELL D. GORRINGE
Universe Staff Writer

Provo City Police are looking for two men involved in the defrauding of an elderly Provo woman, who lost more than $9,000 of her life savings.

The victim, whose name is being withheld for security purposes, received a call June 16 from "a man who said he was an employee of a bank and it was extremely important that she help with an investigation of an employee suspected of theft," said Don A. Messick, investigating Provo City Police officer.

The woman was told that $4,000 was put into her account by use of a computer, and then it was taken back out immediately, Messick said. She was also told the $4,000 was from her saving certificates.

"The victim went to her bank and cashed a $4,500 saving certificate. Four thousand dollars was taken in cash, and $500 was deposited in the woman's checking account. She then went to the parking lot and waited," Messick said.

Then, a man approached and asked her name, Messick said. The man indicated he was "a security officer and had a number of 487 assigned as a badge number."

The woman had been told this number over the phone earlier, he added.

The victim, Messick said, gave the man the money and was told to go straight home, which she did. The man, the first of two suspects in the case, then went into a nearby store.

Messick said the victim received a second call and was asked if she had any other accounts. She stated yes, and gave the names of the two other savings associations.

The man told the victim a teller at one of the savings associations might be involved as well. "The victim was asked to withdraw $5,500 in cash. She drew the money out but was given a check for that amount. She then went to a bank where she cashed the check," Messick said.

The victim returned to the parking lot where a different man, the second suspect, approached her and again asked her name. The woman gave her name and handed the money to the man, who "took the money and told the victim to go home. The victim then saw the second man go back into the store," Messick added.

"The victim received a third call. This time she was told that they found out the $4,000 was taken out of her $6,500 certificate. She was told to cash the certificate and take the $6,500 to the north door on the west side of the store," Messick said.

The woman was told if no one showed up within 10 minutes to go home and wait. At the store, no one came, so she went home and waited. "No calls were ever received, so on June 17 she went back to the bank and told the manager what had happened." The manager called the police, Messick said.

ELWC staff stop elevator abusers

Summertime is filled with many ups and downs for employees of the Admission and Housing staff of the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center.

"Employees have been asked to operate the elevators in order to put an end to the abuse of the machines by many youth conference participants and other children," said Bob Thornock, assistant to the director of the Wilkinson Center. "Many of these kids just want to play on the elevators."

"The elevator problem has been a frustrating one," Thornock said. "I saw one BYU student push the button 11 times while waiting for an elevator. I suppose she thought it would speed things up."

"I'm really glad they have finally done something about it," said David Thatcher, a junior majoring in history from Portland, Ore. "I'm tired of using the stairs."

Besides the long waits, Thornock said the children have caused the elevators to jam by playing with the controls.

"Hopefully, the presence of our people will keep children who just want to play, off the elevators," he said.

One new elevator host said his presence in the elevator has helped.

"A lot of the kids will see someone in the elevators now and just turn and walk off," said David James, a freshman majoring in geography from Rialto, Calif.

Thornock said he plans to keep the elevators manned until the youth conferences are over.

Local man convicted in daughter's death

A Provo man, charged with "recklessly causing the death" of his 10-month-old daughter, was sentenced to one to 15 years in Utah State Prison Friday.

Theodore Allen Smith, 22, pleaded guilty in 4th District Court to a manslaughter charge, a second-degree felony. He was charged with the death of his daughter, Angel, in February.

Smith requested that Judge George E. Ballif allow him to serve his sentence in the Utah County Jail, rather than the Utah State Prison.

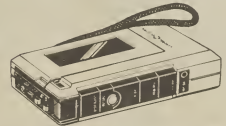

"I feel that I have paid enough for this crime with the pain and guilt of losing my only daughter," Smith told Ballif.

"The punishment aspect of the prison is harsh, in my opinion, for this man, in his situation," Gary Wright, Smith's attorney, said.

"The penalty I know is harsh, but the act you did is exceedingly harsh to society and yourself," Ballif said when he sentenced Smith to the state prison.

Ballif said he would send a letter to the Utah State Prison warden requesting Smith be placed in a treatment program at Utah State Hospital, as soon as an opening is available.

Harp, flute duet tonight

A flute-harp recital, featuring father-daughter duo Ted and Lysa Wight, will be presented tonight at 6 in the Madsen Recital Hall of the HFAC.

Dr. Wight, professor of mathematics at BYU, is also a special instructor of flute and piccolo in BYU's music department.

A former member of the Utah Symphony, Wight has performed extensively with the Utah Valley Symphony, faculty ensembles and with Young Audiences Incorporated.

"This has been the outstanding experience of my career," Wight said. "There's nothing better, than being able to perform with my daughter."

Lysa Wight, a senior from Provo majoring in English, will be leaving in August for Brussels, Belgium, to study under the world renowned harpist Suzanne Milonien.

"It's been a lot of fun performing with my father," Miss Wight said. "He's been very supportive and I couldn't ask for more."

"One of the numbers to be performed at the recital is a Tchaikovsky piece recently for it in an unpublished notebook in the Lincoln Center Library in New York," Miss Wight said. "This will be only the second time it has ever been performed."

"The harp and flute are a very beautiful blend of instruments," Wight said. "This should be an enjoyable experience."

Admission to the recital is free.

RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK

(PG: violence)

"Raiders of the Lost Ark" is a suspense thriller that definitely won't disappoint its audiences.

The film was conceived by "Star Wars" creator George Lucas. He said he was inspired to write it for personal reasons: "I just want to see this movie."

Lucas also said "Raiders" was conceived as a serial; and work has already begun on two sequels.

Former "Jaws" director Steven Spielberg directed the film.

Spielberg opted to use live animals in his film. In the "Well of the Souls" scene, he used more than 6,000 reptiles including pythons, cobras and boa constrictors. In the "Temple of the Chachapoyon Warriors" scene, he used 50 tarantulas.

An elusive treasure, the Ark of the Covenant, provokes a race between nations, the United States and Nazi Germany. According to biblical lore, the Ark contains the broken tablets of the Ten Commandments.

The movie's main character, archaeologist Indiana Jones, is played by Harrison Ford. Ford describes his character as an adventurer. "He's kind of a swashbuckling hero type, but has human frailties, fears and money problems."

Karen Allen plays the heroine, Marion Ravenwood. As the operator of a Nepal bar, she talks tough, loves hard, punches with either hand and can outdrink any man, without batting an eye.

British actor Paul Freeman makes his American film debut as Rene Bellog, a cunning and devious French archaeologist who pits himself against Jones in recovering the lost Ark.

The movie's cinematography and special effects aid it in moving from a simple tale of adventure, to the richer realm of realistic myth. "The filmmakers were very careful to make certain all circumstances in the film were believable," producer Frank Marshall said.

"My films are closer to amusement park rides than to a play or a novel. You get in line for a second ride," Lucas said.

CLASH OF THE TITANS

"Clash of the Titans" is more like a 'splash' in the pan than anything else.

"Clash" deals with Greek Mythology — the story of Perseus (Harry Hamlin) and Andromeda (Judi Bowker). It tells of two mortals whose lives, through the interference of the gods of Olympus, become adventure stories.

At a time when special effects in cinematic art have, in many ways, attained the same degree of sophistication as computer technology, the effects in "Clash" seem to have stood still. The movie's creatures move stiffly, like those in such older movies as "The Adventures of Sinbad the Sailor."

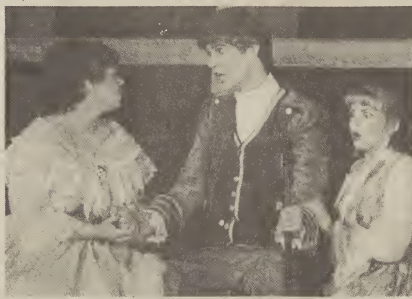

Overall, the movie's acting is good, though there isn't much opportunity to expand and develop the story's characters in a new way.

Burgess Meredith, who plays an old theatrical dramatist, does much to keep the story from lagging. His relationship with Perseus resembles that of Merlin with King Arthur. He teaches the young Perseus, not by sorcery, but by words of advice and wisdom.

"Clash of the Titans" is not a movie for everyone. However, for those who have read, studied and enjoyed Greek mythology, the movie will probably be enjoyable.

The Lamanite Generation returns from Canada tour

By DON FULTON
Universe Staff Writer

The Lamanite Generation recently returned from a six-week tour traveling thousands of miles, from British Columbia to Quebec and back by bus.

The group performed in auditoriums, shopping malls, city squares and on television. "We made over 65 appearances," said Jamie Thompson, artistic director.

"We performed our two-hour program at least once a day, or more, throughout each week, except Sunday," Miss Thompson said. "On Sundays we usually presented fire-sides and spoke at Mormon Church meetings."

The BYU-sponsored tour was spiritually high and the performances were good. The kids put forth lots of effort in helping to build God's kingdom.

"We believe Polynesians, Latins and Indians are distinctly related," Miss Thompson said. "The term 'Lamanite' refers to this common ancestry. A variety of songs and dances are incorporated throughout the performance representing each traditional culture," she said.

A major goal of the group is to spread good will, peace and brotherhood through the entertainment medium. "In 26 years at BYU, I've never been on a better tour," Miss Thompson said. "The

Mozart opera: 'fun, humorous'

By STEPHEN GERZELI
Universe Staff Writer

Watching the opera "Così fan tutti," one might believe Mozart knew something about Mormon culture — the plight and trials of the missionary and his waiting, promising girlfriend.

Saturday evening in the Northwest Court of the Harris Fine Arts Center, approximately 200 people enjoyed the funny, flighty chamber comedy.

Director Clayne Robison said the opera, roughly translated as "Women are like that," referred to the fickleness and deceit practiced by both men and women.

"Singing in parallel thirds and sixths, two young ladies, Debbie Stovall and Debra Erickson, are enticed to switch their affections toward their gentlemen friends who, in order to win a wager, don exotic Albanian disguises," he said.

The singing from all six performers was delightful and resilient, with clear, powerful vibrato.

Miss Erickson, a senior from Salt Lake City majoring in music education, who played Fiordiligi, one of the sisters, said the story was light and people could relate to it.

Mozart kept the story moving at a smooth pace with his light, jovial measures. The music was performed by the BYU Spring Symphony conducted by Dr. Darrel Stubbs.

Unfortunately, not enough students took time to be culturally fed. Opera doesn't have to be all tragedy — even a master, such as Mozart, had a sense of humor.

The outdoor production can still be seen tonight and Wednesday at 8 p.m., Robison said.

It's possible. And if we've made any mistakes, we don't want you to pay for them.

Just call your Mountain Bell business office. (The phone number is listed on your bill, and in the Customer Guide section at the front of the White Pages.) A service representative will be happy to check your records, and find out where the problem lies.

If we've made an error, we'll tell you where it is and correct it immediately. Or, we'll explain to you why your phone bill reads the way it does, and answer any other questions you may have.

Costly mistakes are something we can all live without. So if there seems to be a problem on your phone bill, we'd like to help you straighten it out. And let us make it something you can live with.

For the way you live.
